ART & CULTURE CAMPS

National testing and school performance tables have made education in the United States obsessed with success in the core subjects. Many overlook the arts as important subjects, even though they have a multitude of benefits for kids. That is why the summer time is a great opportunity to foster your child's interest in creative mediums. The arts have a power to deepen and extend our understanding of ourselves and the world. There is nothing like seeing your kid create or perform something that they're proud of.
