Application Process

Interested transfer candidates should apply on-line through our participating universities. The Terry Foundation does not accept applications directly from students. Each of the participating universities will nominate eligible students from their university scholarship applicant pools to the Terry Foundation. The Foundation will review the nominations and interview approximately 384 candidates, expecting to make scholarship offers to approximately half of those interviewed. The selection criteria used by the Foundation include financial need, academic achievement, and demonstrated leadership potential. Although financial need is an important factor in the selection process, a student need not qualify for Federal assistance in order to meet the Terry Scholar selection criteria.
